A photograph of a long, single-story building with a two-tone facade. The upper portion is constructed of red brick, while the lower portion is made of rough-hewn, light-colored stone. The building features several windows and doors. Some windows have dark frames, while others are open, showing a glimpse of the interior. The doors are also dark-framed. The building is set against a backdrop of tall trees, and the foreground shows a gravel path and some grass.
